THE TRAIN RECORDS

INCREASE OF 1.187 LOADED CARS AT THIS POINT LAST WEEK.

Important Changes in Officials on Pennsylvania Lines the First of the Year-Railroad News.

The train records show that in the week ending Dec. 14 there were received and forwarded at Indianapolis 20,256 loaded cars, which was an increase over the week ending Dec. 7 of 1,187 loaded cars, an increase over the corresponding week of 1894 of 2,227 loaded cars, and over the corresponding week of 1893 an increase of 3,826 loaded cars. No Indianapolis line has cars sufficient to fill its orders. From all directions come calls for more cars, and the division superintendents and car service superintendents are at their wits' ends to distribute cars so that no partiality be shown to shippers. Where ten cars are wanted, usually three to five are sent. Never has there been a time when the car service associations have been as beneficial to the roads as now. Since the first of the month there has been a perceptible increase in shipments of grain, flour, cerealine products and provisions to the seaboard, and especially in export shipments has there been a large increase. The east-bound shipments of live stock and dressed meats are the largest in the history of Indianapolis roads. West-bound the shipments of the higher class freights are not as heavy as in either of the last three preceding months, as holiday goods have been largely shipped and the dry goods houses have not yet begun to receive their spring goods. In the lower class freights he tonnage is the heaviest at any time in the last three years. Local traffic is highly satisfactory in its volume, both in and out-bound business being heavier than in December last year, large quantities of grain, coal, live stock, lumber, hogs and hay being handled in a local way. The cerealine mills, starch works and packing houses are ousy, and the commission men are doing more business than at any time in some weeks. The holiday trade is increasing freight business to a considerable extent. Below is given the car movement for the week ending Dec. 14, and for the corresponding weeks of 1894 and 1893: Name of road. ., N. A. & C..... 605 FOR SALE. I. > Total movement25,768 23,346 20,59 Prospective Changes. Regarding the rumors of coming official changes on the Southwestern lines of the Pennsylvania system, the Columbus (O.)

Dispatch says: "With the advent of the new year on the outhwest system of the Pennsylvania lines juite an important rearrangement of the transportation department is to be made. The nature of the changes are not definitely known at this time, but it is certain that Columbus will be affected in a marked way. F. G. Darlington, who for several years has been superintendent of the Indianapolis division, has been in ill health for some time, and if all reports as to his con-dition are to be believed, he is a very sick man. He is now at a sanitarium in the East, but it is not likely in event of an immediate recovery that he would resume his ormer position. The work of the office has een performed from the office of J. F. Miller, general superintendent, in this city, out such an arrangement cannot much longer continue. In filling this position other even more important changes are to "J. J. Turner, superintendent of the Pitts-burg division, is conceded to be a first-class transportation man and to hold him on he system a promotion has become imperative. He will either be made assistant eneral superintendent, with headquarters n this city, or assistant general manager, with headquarters in Pittsburg. The latter is considered the most probable, as there s not now such an office as assistant general superintendent, while there is that or assistant to the general manager-the office held by the late Edward B. Wall, at the close of his work as general agent at the world's fair. There is a report that should Mr. Turner come to Columbus the jurisdiction of General Superintendent Miller will be extended over the Vandalia from Indianapolis to St. Louis, but the Vandalia has so steadfastly refused to come under the immediate control of the Pennsylvania that this is less likely than that Mr. Turner is coming to Columbus. It is pretty well settled that he will leave the Pittsburg division and the control of nbus terminals on Jan. 1, however and the most probable position of the fuure will be assistant to the general manager, as the position still exists, awaiting an appointment." So far as the Vandalia is oncerned, the Dispatch is accurate, as here is excellent authority for stating that W. R. McKeen will continue another year as president of the Terre Haute & Indianapolis, operating the Vandalia lines, and N. K. Elliott will be continued as general uperintendent of the Vandalia There has been a rumor that John G. Williams, vice president and general manager of the Vandalia lines, may retire on the first of the year, but if Mr. Williams is to retire he is keeping it within his own coun-

Leased the Tennessee Midland.

The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway has leased from the Louisville & Nashville, the recent purchaser, the Tennessee Midland road, extending from the Tennessee river to Memphis, and the Paducah, Tennessee & Alabama road, from Paducah, Ky., to Lexington, Tenn. Possession of these roads was taken by the leasing road last night.

Belt Road Traffic.

In the week ending Dec. 14 there were transferred over the Belt road 17,060 cars, an increase over the preceding week of 870 cars. Last week Belt road engines handled 1,479 carloads of live stock, and for switches to local industries on its line 954 cars,

Traffic Notes, The Pennsylvania line handled at this point last week 5,724 cars, 4,114 being loaded. The Indianapolis & Vincennes last week brought to the city 729 carloads of coal, corn and live stock. There were handled at Indianapolls last week 5.712 empty cars, which was 1,235 more than in the week ending Dec. 7.

The Vandalia last week fell below its average at this city, handling but 2,103 loaded cars; of the business brought it 162 cars were loaded with live stock. The Big Four lines handled at this ter-minal last week 9,730 loaded cars, the largest week's business of any week since the lines in the Big Four system were consoli-

But once in the history of the Big Four has the east end of the Chicago division handled as many loaded cars at Indianapolis as last week, 2,940 loaded cars being received and forwarded.

The Indiana, Decatur & Western is doing a good business, handling a large quantity of corn and moving considerable live stock. Like other roads, it would do more were cars to be had to load. Last week the road handled at this point nearly 600 cars, 427

The Peoria & Eastern continues to make an unfavorable exhibit as compared with former weeks, both divisions last week handling only 1,971 loaded cars at this point. The officials say the difficulty in getting cars is their only drawback; they could load 200 cars more per day had they the The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton already shows good results from its new pur-chase, the Indiana, Decatur & Western, and each week from now on will likely show even better results. The C., H. & D. handled at Indianapolis last week 996 cars, 844 being loaded, the best week's business in many months. Like other roads, the Lake Erie & Western is short of cars, and business is so heavy on their main line that the Indianapolis division receives less attention on this score. Still, its east-bound business last week reached 254 loaded cars, against 205 brought in, which is a good exhibit when it is taken into consideration that at this point the road has no connection to receive

Personal, Local and General Notes. The trunk lines have decided to issue no passes or reduced rates on account of live stock shipments after Jan. 1. At the presidents' meetings, President Mayer, of the Baltimore & Ohio, is assisted by John K. Cowen, general solicitor of the company, whose service with that com-pany dates back many years. The Lake Shore, for the first time in its history, will this year sell holiday excursion tickets over its connecting lines.

Present indications are that the Big Four will, through this month, handle an average of five thousand loaded cars a day. C. G. Corwin has been appointed com-mercial agent of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis, with headquarters at Springfield, Ill. The first of the year the general offices of the Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City at Toledo will be moved into more attractive and commodious quarters.

It is thought that the outcome of the Santa Fe abrogating all old contracts will be the company's running its own sleeping cars instead of Pullman cars. The passenger men of Western lines are busy looking after California business, transcontinental line business this fall being heavier than in any fall for several years. It is reported that the new directory of the Baltimore & Ohio has under contemplation a change in presidency, C. F. Mayer, now president, having intimated that he would like to retire. The Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohio will begin operation in their new quarters at Louisville on the first of the year, and have terminal facilities superior to those of any road running into that city. The Michigan Central has issued a neat pamphlet entitled "Class Room and Campus." It is of special interest to collegians and students contemplating a trip home for the holiday vacation. The French state railroads are building several passenger cars in which parts usually constructed of iron and copper will be made of aluminum. The axles and wheels will still be made of steel.

Robert E. Breder has been appointed traveling passenger agent of the Erie lines, with headquarters at Kansas City. For eleven years Mr. Breder has represented the Santa Fe, with headquarters at Buffalo. H. R. Houghton on Jan. 1 will become the Eastern passenger agent of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, with headquarters at Boston. He is to report to H. D. Badgley, the "Q's" general New England passenger

There is the highest authority for saying that the discharge of soliciting agents under the Joint Traffic Association will be gradual, and that every interested line will hold its agents until the new organization has demonstrated its worth.

The board of managers of the Joint Trat-fic Association will probably adopt a ruling that in the loading of grain all cars shall be loaded within 10 per cent. of their marked capacity, the minimum weight not being less than 24,000 pounds. Train and yard employes on the Big Four olindness and hearing, which is arousing me anxiety on the part of employes interested, as this is the first time the matter has received so much attention. Peter Becker, well known to Western stock shippers, and who for thirty years has been in the employ of the New York Central company, looking after its interests at the East Buffalo stockyards, is to retire on Jan. 1 on account of increasing years. It is said that between several Western cities the time of trains by the shorter ines is to be reduced, and instead of making common time the shorter lines will give the longer lines a differential to offset the advantage which putting down the time would benefit the short line. The question of reducing the price of berths on Pullman.cars does not down as readily as the Pullman company wish it would, and the matter is now being discussed by many of the prominent railway officials of the country, but it is feared that affirmative action on the part of the Pullman company is yet a long way off.

The Chicago & Southeastern each week makes a more favorable exhibit of earnings. At the present time the company is handling from fifty to sixty carloads grain and coal daily, and General Agent Moore says would do more had the company the cars. The road is now a feeder to the Big Four, the Monon and the Panhandle lines.

It is stated that more firemen have been promoted to be engineers on the Indianapois lines in the last six months than in any like period for many years, and more new locomotives are being added to the power of Indiana roads than in any year of the last twenty. There are but few roads in this State which have not, during the past year, received a number of new locomo-

C. P. Clark, president, and several of the directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford will to-morrow pass through here on a special train en route to St. Louis to examine the new Union Station at that point. The party will make a short stop at Indianapolis to look over the Union Station, which, until the last two years, was the finest in the country, and is now excelled only by three union stations. The action of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois in cutting down the running time between Chicago and Nashville, a distance or 444 miles, to twelve hours and thirty minutes is causing an agitation for a reduction in running time between Chicago and other points. Between Chicago and Minneapolis by two of the roads is 420 miles, yet the fastest scheduled train is fourteen hours in making the run, when it could readily be run in eleven hours. The N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad's sleepingcar service is a practical illustration how sleeping-car rates can be made within the reach of people of ordinary means. The company runs a line of sleepers, buffet and dining cars from Boston to New York, which are equal, if not superior, to Pull-man's service. The N. Y., N. H. & H.

charges $1 for upper berths and $1.50 for ower berths. For the same distance the Pullman's charges are $2 for either upper or lower berths. In addition to this the N. Y., N. H. & H. charges $3 for an elegant Some of the officials who now have high and very pleasant positions and who have been selected for positions on some of the official staffs of the new joint traffic association are disposed to fight shy of the agreement, as they feel that there is great incertainty as to what action some of the Western and Eastern Senators may take discussed among the legislative bodies at Washington, and if the present signs of hostility are to be taken as an indication of what may be expected when the big guns of Congress begin to debate the quesion, it may be safely predicted that the future course of the pool is not going to be very smooth. D. S. Gray, general agent of the Pennsylvania lines at Columbus, who was offered a high position with the pool association, now says that he is reluctant to resign or vacate even temporarily his present position to fill the place offered him. There is no doubt that Mr. Gray, well-posted man that he is, sees trouble ahead for the pool, and does not care to ie himself to it so tightly as to endanger his future interests with the Pennsylvania

Speaker Reed's Policy. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: To a Republican who contents himself with mingling with the common herd of the party, it seems that the policy of the present Congress is to be carried out according to the ideas as outlined by Speaker Reed, The Monon last week reached its maximum of business at Indianapolis, handling a total of 851 cars, 605 being loaded. presidential goal. It is reported that Mr. Reed has already said that no appropriations for public buildings would be allowed at this session. If this is actually true, why is it necessary for Mr. Henry to devote his time to formulating and pushing a bill for the erection of a government building in this city, and why should the committee elected recently and composed of several leading and active citizens, spend their time and money in going to Washington city in the interest of the bill when Mr. Reed has issued his ultimatum? The Speaker is also credited with saying that he was in favor of increasing the duty on three or four articles, but no more, at this session, and as this is to be a Reed Congress, I suppose what he says must go. If increaing the duty on less than a half dozen articles will produce sufficient reve-nue to make up the deficiency created by the Gorman-Brice tariff act, then from my way of thinking the Republicans cannot lo otherwise than to virtually admit they have been partially wrong on the tariff question. It is said that Mr. Cleveland will veto a general tariff bill in case one should be enacted, and for this reason Mr. Reed is willing to drop down a few notches in order o capture him and prevent a veto. Let us have a tariff bill passed on the lines laid by McKinley, Harrison and other Republicans, and if Mr. Cleveland vetoes it, let him do it and assume the responsibility, as he and his party have done in the past. About all the President seems to be proficient in is exercising the veto power. writing twenty-thousand-word messages and fishing, so if the Democrats can stand fifteen months more of being in "clover," surely the rest of the people can, no matter how tiresome the burden.

Captain Bassett Dying. WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. — Capt. Isaac Bassett, the venerable doorkeeper of the Senate, is slowly dying. Dr. Curtis, who is attending him, says that he will not survive much longer. At 2:30 a. m. it was said be might not live through the morning.

he might not live through the morning.

Captain Isaac Bassett enjoyed the distinc-tion of being one of the most noted figures at the national capital. He served continuously in one position or another in the United States Senate for sixty-five years, and from a delicate boy of eleven literally and the date of his appointment 1830. After he had outgrown the office of page he was that elevated to the office of assistant doorkeeper, which position he filled until he came to be as much a fixture in the chamber as the marble clock which, according to Capitol gossip, he was wont to turn back at the end of each March session, when some special legislation was desired to be completed. His duties embraced the general housekeeping of the Senate, and the seating of the members and the actual olice work of the sergeant-at-arms, when that official was called upon to act in that capacity. It was in that capacity that in his younger days he had to face the only revolver, save one, that has ever been drawn in the Senate. It was in the hands of a Senator from one of the small States, being very much intoxicated, was raising a row and the sergeant-at-arms was finally ordered to take him into custody. When "Bully" Brooks made his memorable assault on Charles Sumner it was Mr. Bassett who Assisted the Massachusetts statesman to the cloak room, assisted to bathe his wounds and prepare him for removal

Persons who have visited the Senate chamber any time within the last quarter of a century have noticed a pleasant-faced old gentleman with white hair and beard the former curled carefully in a roll, who sat at the left of the presiding officer. When a message was received from the President of the United States or from the House of Repersentatives it was he who announced the fact to the Senate. Although he performed this duty for years, he invariably made as much fuss over it as though it were his first attempt. His face would turn searlet, and, as he bowed his head to the presiding officer, there was a quiver in his voice as he uttered the stereotyped formula. This was accompanied by a hesitancy of speech, as if uncertain whether or not his remarks would fall on appreciative ears. Captain Bassett was the recipient of numerous marks of esteem from the Senators. On the anni-versary of his liftlerh year of service he was presented with a beautiful silver snuffbox, the presentation being made by the presiding officer. In 1876, on his birthday an oil painting of himself was presented to him, accompanied by a letter signed by Senator Anthony, "on behalf of the members of the Senate, irrespective of party," and on the occasion of his golden wedding

he was presented with a handsome silver Warden Hert's Management. JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Dec. 14.-The ommittee of hold-over Senators appointed by the late Legislature to investigate the onvict labor problem arrived at the Prison South to-day. Suspected Filibuster. PENSACOLA, Fla., Dec. 14.-Early this week the announcement was made of the sale of the American steamship Czarina, 661 tons, to San Francisco parties, represented here by Captain R. Samuels, of the Marine Journal, who came from New York to make the purchase. It was understood that the steamer was taking on 1,200 tons of coal for her voyage around Cape Horn to the Pacific coast this morning. She cleared at he custom house with a cargo of pig iron and this afternoon rumors were thick that she was in reality bound for Cuba, presumably with arms and supplies. known that a deputy United States marshal went to the wharf before the hour of sailing and had a conversation with Captain Lapsley on the wharf. The captain excused nimself for a minute, and going aboard the Czarina, pulled out before the officer realized his intention. The pilot who was there to take the vessel out was left on the wharf and the Czarina was soon going lown the bay under full steam and in short time was well out at sea. It is said that the officer had no papers, and it is intimated that information had been given by a seaman who had shipped for the voyage which led to suspicion of the steam-er's real destination. There was no government boat in the harbor to overhaul the Czarina and if she is really bound for Cuba she is now well on her way,

A Swindling Concern. CHICAGO. Dec. 14.-By his own confesion the jewelry business conducted up to Sept. 25 last in the Hartford building by Harry Leon was a gigantic swindling concern, in which half a dozen men are said to have participated. Leon is in hiding, and two of his alleged confederates are in the custody of United States Marshal John W. Arnold. They are Alva W. Ketcham, stock broker, with rooms in the Hartford building, a young man of reputed wealth, and Daniel P. Eberman, a retired banker, fifty years of age. During the four months in which the jewelry business was conducted the concern, through confessed fraudulent representations, secured $90,000 worth of stock, and but $25,000 was found in the place the day following the assignment. Leon, Ketcham and Eberman are said, in the former's confession, to have been the chief beneficiaries of the reputed swindle.

Mrs. Parnell's Condition.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Delia S. Parnell, the mother of the late Charles Stewart, is still in Trinity Hospital, this city. Mrs. Parnell was some months ago robbed and brutally beaten when going to her residence at Bordentown, N. J. She decided, on recovering, to visit Ireland and remain for some time with her only surviving son, John Howard Parnell, but the shock to her system was so great as to compel her to abandon her proposed trip. She therefore took up her residence temporarily in Trinity Hospital, the matron of that institution being an old friend of hers. Mrs. Parnell complains of intense

HOLIDAY AND OTHER BOOKS.

(From the Bowen-Merrill Company.) If Robert Louis Stevenson ever thought that his personal letters might one day be collected and printed he might not have opened his heart so frankly and freely to his friends, and would not have given so free play to moods and a freakish fancy. But it is this absence of restraint that gives his Vallima letters, addressed to Sidney Colvin, their especial charm. They not only take the reader into the intimacy of the writer's Samoan home, but give glimpses into his own nature not afforded by the books written with more care for the public eye. But there was nothing n heart or thought, so far as set down in these epistles, that might not have been given to all the world to see, and all the world that learned to know him through his books will read these characteristic outpourings with a pleasure mitigated only by the thought that he is to write no more either for friend or public. These Vallima letters are issued in two volumes by Stone & Kimball, of Chicago, the imprint of that firm being sufficient guarantee of a typographical elegance befitting the literary merit of the work and the author's standing.

In "A Houseboat on the Styx" Mr. John Kendrick Bangs recounts the doings and sayings on sundry occasions of the Associated Shades, a select body of immortal ghosts who organize themselves into a club for mutual intercourse and social benefit. The house-boat, the Nancy Nox, anchored close to the hades shore of the Styx, is the club; such eminent spirits as Sir Walter Raleigh, Cassius, Demosthenes, Blackstone, Doctor Johnson and Confucius are the house committee, and old Charon is the steward and manager of the organization. The plan of the work is original and unique, and is very cleverly carried out. One soon gets to feel at home among the shades of great men, and the manner in which they are caricatured is exceedingly amusing. ok is a most audacious burlesque of history. Harper & Brothers. The two handsome bound volumes of the St. Nicholas Magazine, embracing the num bers for the past year, making Volume 22, contain a wealth of good reading for children, including some of the most popular stories of the year. They embrace Palmer Cox's irrepressible Brownies, on their tour through the Union; Howard Pyle's brave "Jack Ballister," who got the best of Blackbeard's piratical crew; Alber Stearn's "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp;" ago. There are a series of sketches in a simple There are a series of sketches in a simple and sympathetic vein of "Famous American Authors," by Brander Matthews, and Theodore Roosevelt's inspiring "Hero Tales from American History." Aside from these serial features the volumes are crowded with stories, sketches and verses, instructive as well a amusing. Some of the articles are written specially for boys and others for girls, while many are of the neuter gender and equally good for either sex. In the latter class fall the poetical contributions from many well-known writers. In short, the bound volumes of St. Nicholas are a literary gold mine for young people. Cloth, red and gold, $4. New York: The Century Company.

Regular readers of the Century Magazine know that every issue contains many good and some excellent things. When six issues of the magazine are bound in one volume the excellence is multiplied and enhanced. The bound volume for the six months from May to October, 1895, constituting the fiftieth of the series, is at hand, replete with biography and personal reminiscences, travel and out-of-door papers, fiction, essays, poetry, articles on art and discussions of timely topics. Perhaps the most notable feature of the volume is Prof. William M. Sloane's "Life of Napoleon," which reaches the most exciting portion of the great conqueror's career. portion of the great conqueror's career. There is a profusion of illustrations, including not only reproductions of famous mas-terpieces of painting, but also many draw-ings made for the work by French, English and American artists. A suggestive contrast in the character of the two Napoleons is furnished by Miss Anna L. Bicknell's interesting reminiscences of "Life in the Tuileries Under the Second Empire." There are many other articles worthy of mention, the volume as a whole having permanent literary value. Cloth, ornamental, $3. New York: The Century Company.

In announcing the change of name from "Harper's Young People" to "Harper's Round Table," in April, 1895, the publishers promised a widening of the field and the addition of new departments and features. They assured the young patrons of the periodical that not one of the old attractions would be omitted, while many new ones would be added, especially an athletic department entitled "Interscholastic Sport." How well this promise has been kept appears in the bound volume of "Harper's Round Table" for 1895. All of the features of the new publication are admirable, while the department above referred to is the only one of its kind in any American periodical. Still another noticeably unique feature of the past year has been the weekly publication of bicycle maps—marked charts and descriptions of various bicycle routes in the vicinity of different important cities in America. Added to these are many first rate stories by well-known authors and a long list of other attractions. The They assured the young patrons of the and a long list of other attractions. The good reading which fills the large volume is supplemented by a great number of illustrations, making a fine Christmas gift for young people. Interest in the study of ancestry has so greatly increased in recent years, owing to the formation of patriotic societies, membership in which involves certain requirements of descent, that an authoritative work giving the objects of such societies and their rules for admission has been demanded. This want is supplied by a little volume called "Ancestry," compiled by Eu-gene Zieber, which outlines the purpose and requirements of all the hereditary societies and the military and naval orders of the United States. The list includes forty-seven organizations, and is completed up to October, 1895. It is a valuable and timely book of reference. It is handsomely printed, bound in a white, flexible cover, and sells for 25 cents. Issued by the Bailey, Banks & Biddle Company, Philadelphia.

The longest story that Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett has published since "Fauntleroy" is "Two Little grims' Progress," otherwise desig-City Beautiful." It is a charming juvenile story of a little boy and girl who, taking their savings, left home to visit the world's fair. Their experiences and adventures are related in Mrs. Burnett's most delightful style. A competent critic says: "It is a story to be marked with a white stone, a strong, sweet, true book, touching the high water mark of excellence, and sure to become a popular favorite." It is illustrated by Birch and bound uniform with Fauntleroy. Cloth, ornamental, $1.50. Chas. Scribner's Sons.

It may be true, as the census report shows, that the growth of the smaller towns and farming communities has been checked, but the love of nature and of homely farm life is still strong in the heart of the people. It appears in much of the literature of the day, especially of the poetry. Those who cherish the sentiment will find it well voiced in "Poems of the Farm," a collection of short poems by different authors relating to home and country life. The selections are made with good taste by Alfred R. Eastman and the illustrations, also by him, are numerous and exceedingly pretty. Bound in blu-cloth and with gilt edges the book would make a pretty holiday gift. Price, $2.50. Boston: Lee & Shepard.

In spite of the critics young people continue to read Oliver Optic's stories, and by the same token, he continues to write. His latest, "A Lieutenant at Eighteen," constitutes No. 3 in the "Blue and Gray on Land" series. It is a story of war times in which the young reader not only contin-ues his acquaintance with Deck Lyon and the other principal characters of the preceding volumes, but is introduced to many new ones. The hero has been promoted to the rank of second lieutenant and assigned to the first company under Captain Gordon. The story is full of stirring adventure.

It is attractively written and abounds in those little touches country in which the scenes are laid seem to be portrayed with fidelity. It makes a charming little Christmas remembrance.

Cloth, ornamental, 50 cents, Estes & Those who have not time to read all the recent narratives of travel and discovery in Africa will find the subject well digested and epitomized in "Europe in Africa in the Nineteenth Century," by Elizabeth W. Latimer. By eliminating much superfluous matter and stating only results the author has succeeded in making clear what seemed a dark forest in history before it was penetrated and explored. Illustrated. Cloth, $2.50. Chicago: A. C. McClurg & Co.

A volume entitled "Reflections and Comments" contains a collection of articles by E. L. Godkin, which have appeared in the Nation during the last thirty years. They embrace a wide range of nonpolitical top-ics which, during that period, have attract-ed public attention. Many of the essays have permanent interest and all are admirably written. Cloth, $2. Charles Scribner's Sons.

One of the pretty holiday books for children is "The Garden Behind the Moon," written and illustrated by Howard Pyle. It a fairy tale with a mystical moral significance which gives it charm and dignity. The story is adventurous in character and a really charming piece of juvenile fiction. The illustrations are very striking. Cloth, ornamental, $2. Chas. Scribner's Sons. Mrs. Campbell-Praed, author of "Christina Chard" and other popular novels, has
